

18.01.2018 | Conference Presentation: Engaging the Listener in Your Talk

Referentin: Julie Stearns

Zeitraum: 09:00 Uhr bis 17:00 Uhr

Ort: Johann-Joachim-Becher-Weg 5, Alte Mensa, WBZ U1-155

Description:

The seminar provides women participants the opportunity to improve their conference presentation skills. Constructive feedback from the trainer and group members give the speaker a healthy amount of input while practicing new ideas and techniques to enhance the quality of their speech and overall impact of the talk. Participants will be required to prepare a 3 to 5 minute overview of their work; the use of slides is optional. This will provide a basis for applying the practical aims of the workshop. Throughout the one-day workshop, participants will be guided through interactive exercises to improve nonverbal communication, improve the ability to listen and react generously, and to integrate focusing techniques, which empower the speaker. Attention will also be given to structural and language aspects to improve clarity and flow of the talk, as well as gender related issues in communication.

Contents in brief:

- Promoting your science effectively
- Engaging the audience in one's talk (language tactics to make an impact)
- Awareness of body-language and gender specific aspects related to non-verbal communication
- Make conscious vocal choices in the delivery of the presentation to communicate each idea with
 - clarity and precision
- Communicating with confidence
- Constructive tactics for dealing with nervousness
- Dealing with challenging questions (Q&A sessions)

Methodology:

- Voice and body techniques
- Partner work/role-play
- Language practice and analysis
- Improvisation

Online-Anmeldung unter <http://www.frauenbuero.uni-mainz.de/3333.php>

Nähere Informationen: Sabine Morweiser, Monika Stegmann | Forum universitatis 3,
00-320 | prowewin@uni-mainz.de | www.frauenbuero.uni-mainz.de/158.php | Tel. 06131/39-25783